Our objectives & commitments to you

Introduction

LegalforLandlords work in co-operation with several carefully selected businesses alongside national and local government to ensure that the services that it offers are the most advantageous to its members. These relationships are regularly reviewed, and we reserve the right to change these at any time to ensure it is continually offering the best service possible to its members. It's a continually changing market and we want to team up with the best to deliver the best.

Our motives:

- To encourage good standards of management in the private-rented sector, principally by promoting codes of practice.
- To lobby government and other regulatory bodies with a view to influencing the legislative and regulatory environment for the best interests of our members.
- Work in co-operation with other businesses where there is a common interest in improving the private-rented sector for our members.
- Develop a range of member services that meets the needs of our members, with a secondary objective of encouraging private landlords to remain in the sector and encouraging others to join.
- To maintain an approachable stature where questions, concerns and advice can be sought easily by our members, irrelevant of their location within the country or method of communication.
